

New Atlas Missile Strikes Its Target 5,000 Miles Away

Heavier Payload, Greater Range Indicated by Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—An advanced Atlas missile, designed for greater range and heavier payload, smashed a target 5,000 miles away Friday night after it revolved Air Force bases in California. The new weapon can be operational this year.

Driven by the most powerful set of U.S. rocket engines ever flown, the 25-foot intercontinental range missile sped to an intended target north of the South Atlantic island of Ascension. The Air Force reported all flight objectives were met on the 25-minute trip.

Capsule Recovered
A 30-pound data capsule ejected from the nose cone and was recovered by the range vessel Sword Knot less than an hour after it parachuted into the sea. The capsule was packed with instruments to record the performance of the cone, especially how it withstood the searing 13,000-degree re-entry heat.

The success was only the second in seven firings of the new, more powerful Atlas E model. Most of the previous failures in the series were traced to a faulty hydraulics system. Engineers have concentrated on correcting the trouble and officials said after the latest flight that the problem seems solved.

Continued success, the officials reported, will enable the improved Atlas to meet its operational deadline of late fall.

Kasavubu Says Parliament to Be Convened

Asks U.N. to Protect Lawmakers, Provide Travel Facilities

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—President Joseph Kasavubu today announced the reconvening of the Congolese parliament after eight months of constitutional disorders.

Kasavubu asked for United Nations protection for the parliamentarians and their families, and for U. N. travel facilities to bring the members to Leopoldville.

He called the first session to open immediately after the conclusion of the present political conference in Coquilhatville, probably this month.

"The moment is very grave," Kasavubu said in a formal address in Coquilhatville. "Everyone has the duty to collaborate in the work of reconstruction. I hope the convocation of the parliament will bring not merely a return to legality but a full new lease of life for our population."

Bid to Leftists

By recalling the parliament Kasavubu effectively challenged the rebellious Lumumbist regime in Stanleyville to come to terms with the central government.

Rebel leader Antoine Gizenga has always insisted that only parliament could designate a legal government.

Gizenga took over the leadership among followers of ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, slain during captivity early this year, and set up a rump regime in Stanleyville to continue the fight for a rigid central government.

Lumumba was killed while in the jurisdiction of President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, who declared his province a separate state right after Congolese independence last summer.

Canada Ready to Greet Kennedy

OTTAWA (AP)—President Kennedy will get a warm welcome next week but he will find some Canadians cool toward his policy on Cuba.

Both the President and Mrs. Kennedy are extremely popular here. Civic officials expect their three-day visit, beginning Tuesday, to draw crowds second only to those during Queen Elizabeth's visit two years ago.

Despite differences on Cuba, relations between the United States and Canada seem to be on the upturn again after a period of deterioration. The Kennedys' visit is expected to accelerate the improvement.

One of the causes of U.S.-Canadian friction in recent years has been a feeling on this side of the border that the United States was not paying enough attention to Canada's views and "bamboo curtain" of opposition problems. The fact that Kennedy expected to accelerate the improvement to foreign capital to maintain Canada for his first presidential visit abroad has produced favorable reaction here.

Rusk, Gromyko Fail to Agree in Laos Dispute

U. S. Against Allowing Pathet Lao Equality at Conference in Geneva

GENEVA (AP)—U. S. Secretary accepted by all delegations to the State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met today but failed to solve their dispute over how Laos should be represented in the international conference on the future of the Southeast Asian kingdom.

The issue of Laotian representation kept the conference from starting on schedule Friday. In his first try at personal diplomacy with the Soviets, Rusk conferred with Gromyko in a Soviet hillside mansion to try to end the dispute. Rusk told newsmen after his meeting that the United States would not accept the Soviet demand for full and equal status for the Communist-ruled Pathet Lao at the conference table.

New Soviet Demand
"This represents an injection of a new idea by the Soviet Union," Rusk said. "This was not the basis on which we were invited to the conference."

Rusk and Gromyko were together at the tree-shaded Soviet Palace after lending a touch of mission for 70 minutes. The American decided to call on the Soviet foreign minister to explore ways of breaking the deadlock, a move encouraged by other Western leaders.

Meanwhile, five members of the Western-backed Laotian government delegation reached Geneva. W. Averell Harriman, President Kennedy's roving ambassador, met them and Rusk arranged a prompt conference with them. Pathet Lao and neutralist delegations, the other two factions involved, already are at Geneva.

Their arrival was one of a fast-moving series of developments. In Laos, at the town of Ban Namone in rebel-held territory, sides signed a formal cease-fire and agreed to open political talks tomorrow. The talks will be aimed at setting up a coalition government and possibly agreeing on a unified delegation to Geneva.

A report from the International Control Commission, submitted before the Ban Namone agreement, said a de facto cease-fire truce in fact if not actually signed—was in effect in Laos. It said that breaches probably were due to misunderstandings, scattered forces and the like.

Industrial Output Increases Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sharp increase in industrial production last month gives added indication that the U. S. economy is moving up from recession lows.

The Federal Reserve Board reported Friday a 2.5 per cent jump in industrial output over March. It was the first increase in 9 months and the best showing in 16.

And the experts of the Business Advisory Council and Department of Commerce predicted the gross national product "GNP" would reach a record annual rate of $255.520 billion by the end of the year. The B.A.C. includes the heads of many of the nation's largest companies.

Public transport moved normal, but shops closed on time, but many shops stood by ready to bang down the shutters at the first sign of trouble.

Fires Raze Homes In Hollywood Area

Over 1,000 Acres Covered; No Serious Injuries Result

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The upper hand there was no fire swept through the scenic, brush-covered Hollywood Hills with explosive fury Friday night, leaving many homes destroyed or damaged.

The flames, pushed by gusts up to 40 m.p.h., blackened more than 1,000 acres before fire fighters got them under control.

All of the homes burned or threatened were on hillsides near Griffith Park Observatory. Among those lost was novelist Aldous Huxley's.

Aerial observers counted 24 homes apparently destroyed or damaged. The blaze started about 7:43 p.m. near Beachwood Canyon, an area often used for scenes in Western movies.

Within 17 minutes after the first alarm, officials declared a major emergency. Powerful winds swept the flames through brush and trees from one of the driest years in the area's history.

Camp Hollywood, a Girl Scout encampment with 145 girls on the scene, was surrounded by the fire for a time. Firemen moved equipment in rapidly and the children were allowed to remain.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. One report was that it started when a power line blew down.

Residents of southern Illinois and Indiana kept a tense watch today on soggy levees and dikes weakened by nearly a week of flooding that has reached record proportions.

Hundreds of thousands of acres remained under water with swollen rivers and streams still surging towards crests expected in the next few days.

Waters receded however, in other sections of the stricken six-state area which also includes Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas. Fair, warm weather prevailed over most of the area.

Despite the lack of rain since last weekend's deluge touched off the flooding, many rivers continued to rise as tributaries absorbed the runoff.

Vast sections of southern Illinois lay under the murky backwaters and residents, national guardsmen and volunteers battled the worst flooding in the area in 20 years. Fifteen counties have been listed as disaster areas. Numerous roads remain impassable, utilities disrupted and water supplies threatened.

Doubt Reds Set for Second Man in Space

MOSCOW (UPI)—Radio Warsaw's report that a second manned Soviet space flight was imminent received no support here today.

Western correspondents and diplomats here noted there was little resemblance between the mood in official Moscow circles this weekend and the climate that preceded Maj. Yuri Gagarin's space flight April 12.

Radio Warsaw said yesterday that information gathered from "Moscow scientific circles" indicated that second man space flight would take place soon.

Etna Subsides After Hurling Rocks Into Air

Over 1,000 Acres Covered; No Serious Injuries Result

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI)—Mount Etna blasted rocks as big as trucks up to 5,000 feet into the air early today, then subsided from violent eruption to low-key rumbling.

A small river of lava oozed down its slope towards the inhabited lowlands and the volcano's fiery glow could be seen for hundreds of miles.

The Catania Volcanology Institute said eruptions which began last night shortly before midnight sent molten rocks soaring high into the air.

Experts at the institute said the violent activity lasted until the early morning hours. During the height of the eruption, nearby towns and villages were put on the alert for possible evacuation.

The eruption, which began Thursday, was compared to Etna's big eruption in 1954 when lava surged onto the deserted streets of Fornazzo, a village which had been evacuated a few hours before the blast-off.

Swiss Mathematician Shows U.S. Navy How He Dives 1,000 Feet

WASHINGTON (AP)—A young mathematician-diver is showing the U.S. Navy how he can descend to a simulated depth of 500 feet, almost twice as deep as any previous diver.

He believes that dives down to 1,000 feet near Toulon, France, different depths. This was a "bounce dive," in which he remained on the bottom of the tank for only a few seconds. Total seconds and ascent. The tanks in place of air for breathing is time for the dive and return was about 45 minutes. Using normal platform.

Hannes Keller, 25, former diving instructor from Wim that depth would require hours of training. Switzerland, held a news conference at the Navy's experimental diving unit headquarters the "bends." This is caused by the development of bubbles in the bloodstream when returning too quickly from the heavy pressure reached by divers at depths far beyond present capability.

Keller said he had been diving rapidly from the heavy pressure only during the last few years to of extreme depth.

Keller said there were several reasons for withholding information. He mentioned only one: passing the open water depth record of slightly over 500 feet reached by a U.S. Navy diver. In using a technique still experimented by scientists.

Discrimination Harms Relations With Africans

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The charge d'affaires for Sierra Leone, Dr. William H. Fitzjohn, told a Baltimore audience that America's racial discrimination is doing grave damage in its relations with the new nations of Africa.

Dr. Fitzjohn and his driver re-cently were refused service at a Hagerstown, Md., restaurant be-cause they are Negroes. Presi-dent Kennedy, State Department and Hagerstown officials all ex-pressed regret to the diplomat later. The restaurant has since changed its policy.

New Vaccine Give Lifelong Protection Against Measles

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A vaccine to give lifelong protection against seven-day measles has proved highly successful in tests, a Harvard Medical School pedia-trician said today.

Dr. Samuel L. Katz said the vaccine had been tried on 4,000 children over the last 2-3 years with great success.

In part of the study, he said, 84 children, intimately exposed to the disease 2 to 16 months after receiving one shot of the vaccine, did not contract the disease.

In a similar unvaccinated group, 70 to 100 per cent con-tracted measles, he said.

Dr. Katz addressed a pediatrics session of the 135th annual con-vention of the Medical Society of New York.

American Youth and the Russians

Recently a group of boy students at Nicolet High School, Milwaukee, and their teacher visited the national capital and spent some time in the Russian Embassy in an effort to find out what the Russians think.

The boys, including one senior and 11 juniors, spent two hours and 15 minutes at the Russian Embassy questioning Mikhail A. Schumakov, an embassy second secretary. The following day they spent an hour and a half with Gennadi D. Fursov, an attache in Russian cultural affairs.

The boys, reporting on their experience, said they found the Russian views on capitalism were obsolete. The Russians seemed to be talking about capitalism of 50 years ago.

When they asked the Russians about Tibet, including the oppression of the Tibetans and the flight of the Dalai Lama, the Russian spokesman told them that "most of the people there were behind Communism but a few were not."

Later they brought up the subject of the 1956 uprising in Hungary and asked about the responsibility for it. The Russians merely replied, "Well it is quite obvious to all of us."

The high school boys were not sure whether the things that appeared to be obvious to them were the same things considered obvious by the Russian spokesman.

One of the youths asked a Russian if it were not true "that he earned more than a Russian farmer, even though Communism was supposed to be a classless society."

The boys didn't report a reply to that question and contented themselves with the remark that "he never did give us much of an answer about that."

When they asked the Russian spokesman if it was possible for Premier Khrushchev to have political opposition, they were told that "Khrushchev would be replaced by the people if they became dissatisfied with him."

The young students were left somewhat curious about how this could be brought about but they received no help from the Russians in satisfying their curiosity.

About the same time 20 Soviet graduate students who have spent six months on American university campuses were being interviewed by the New York Times. The Soviet students appeared to be more impressed by American hospitality than by American academic standards, the report shows. Many of the students viewed American interests as too frivolous. One said that the bowling alleys were more crowded than the concert halls. A number of the students said they had left their dormitories to live in private rooms or apartments in order to get away from noise and distraction. Nevertheless, several of them indicated they would like to study for a second year in America.

Some of the Russian students disliked the arrangement for academic work. Some considered the one hour lectures too short. Others complained of the interruptions by students who asked questions during the lectures. Several grumbled about travel restrictions imposed upon them. They apparently were unaware that these restrictions were in retaliation against similar Soviet rulings on American students.

It must be quite clear that the reports of the Russian students when they return to their homeland will be little more flattering of America than reports of the Milwaukee students who visited the Russians in Washington. Students, like everyone else, are inclined to favor the methods and practices they are accustomed to.

Change is difficult and disturbing and thus frequently the cause of complaint. One year is scarcely enough time for a student to change to a new system and understand its advantages. Nevertheless, after the students return to Russia and resume work under the Russian plan, they may upon occasion think longingly of the freedom they enjoyed in America.

Quiet in the Congo?

The Congo has appeared relatively quiet, as far as news goes, in the last few weeks. One reason is there has been so much other information of importance. There still is a lot of history in the making in the Congo.

The Central Government of President Kasavubu has accomplished what may turn out to be quite a diplomatic feat. It has arrested Moise Tshombe of Katanga province and announced that he will be tried for a variety of crimes including high treason and the assassination of political prisoners. In one swoop the Central Government may eliminate the chief rival of Kasavubu and pick up the allegiance of the millions who became emotionally, if foolishly, enamored of Patrice Lumumba.

Actually Tshombe's downfall began about the time he gleefully told of Lumumba's death although claiming no responsibility. Until that time he seemed to have the people of Katanga firmly behind him, the Belgians on his side, and an economically stable area. His insistence upon a loose federation of states in the Congo rather than a strong centralized regime had backing in other parts of the land.

But the Belgians, supposedly helping him in Katanga in varying degrees, failed to recognize his declaration of independence for Katanga. Tshombe's increasing belligerence in opposing Kasavubu's efforts toward cooperation with United Nations troops and policies alienated those who hoped for a real restoration of order. When Tshombe irately walked out of a meeting with Kasavubu, he was seized by Congolese soldiers. After some delay the Central Government announced that he would stand trial.

The machinery for a trial may be completely lacking. There are no Congolese judges and only one lawyer. No court yet has authority to deal with treason. The Central Government may conceive of the trial as a means of getting publicity as the Eichmann trial has done for Israel.

But Tshombe seems on the way out. And this time there is no loud public outcry at his imprisonment as there was for Lumumba. His friends have not mastered the techniques of publicity and falsehood as did Lumumba's Red associates.

No Controversy at Waupaca; State Law Is Being Enforced

Editor, Post-Crescent:

It appears that a controversy has developed in the city of Waupaca concerning the "dancehall" law. There should be no need for this controversy as such, since the law is legal, binding, and makes more than excellent sense.

The facts of this controversy, at least according to an observer, are as follows:

1. The "dancehall" law states that minors, persons 17 years old and under, must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian if they enter an establishment that is a licensed dance hall.

2. This is a state law and applies to all persons and all establishments within the State of Wisconsin.

3. Sheriff Ray Abrahamson intends to enforce this law, this is his job, and any sheriff not enforcing the state law should do so or be forced to do so by the public, if he does not, he should be removed from office. Sheriff Abrahamson shows that he is a man who will not put up with dictation from outside sources, that he will not be intimidated, and that he will carry out his duty as the law requires.

The "controversy" seems to stem from the actions of a few people. A small minority of persons in the city of Waupaca have shown their contempt for the law and for the officers of the law by hanging in effigy the sheriff of Waupaca County. This action was apparently that of teenagers protesting the enforcement of the "dancehall" law, especially at the Indian Crossing Casino at the Cham of Lakes. This irresponsibility of action may be termed by some as "youthful delinquency", but might more aptly be termed as "parental delinquency" for permitting their teenagers to hold the law in contempt and to deprecate the character of a law enforcement officer that is doing his duty for the public good as set down by the statutes of the State of Wisconsin.

The owners of the Casino, the place in question in the controversy, have invoked the 18-year-old beer bar law at their establishment, and have acknowledged the "dancehall" law; thus, they have given their sanction to the law of the State of Wisconsin, and are acknowledging their responsibilities in the manner of good citizens and intelligent, upstanding businessmen.

No controversy exists between the Casino owners and Sheriff Abrahamson. The owners acknowledge and intend to abide by the laws, and the sheriff intends to enforce them. This, therefore, is not controversy, but agreement. It is only a "controversy" because a certain small minority of irresponsible teenagers and their parents do not think that a public law should cover them as well as everybody else.

Sorry, Sir, He Just Didn't Recognize the Face Right Offhand

From The Wall Street Journal

A duffer drove his tee shot into the adjoining fairway. He hurried to where he thought his ball had landed, only to find another golfer at the spot addressing a ball.

"That's my ball you're hitting," said the duffer.

The other was as courteous as he could be. "I'm quite sure it's mine," he said.

The duffer was insistent. "I think if you check you'll find my name printed on it."

The other grunted his teeth, picked up the ball and looked at it carefully. "I beg your pardon, Mr. Spaulding," he said, bowing low, "but I didn't recognize you."

BY DANIEL O'FLAHERTY

For the first 3½ years of the Civil War, the blockade of the southern states by the U. S. Navy was almost totally ineffective. By the end of 1864, when it did become effective, the war was already over, for all practical purposes.

The popular notion of the South as a nation - in - arms strangled slowly in a sea blockade is an historical fallacy. The misconception arises out of the gnarly shortages suffered by the South, which were due to failure of the land transportation system of the Confederacy and to the military action of the Federals, rather than to any failure of supplies to get through the blockade.

The supplies, in fact, were coming through, from first to last. The port of Wilmington, N.C., Lee's chief source of food and ammunition, did $68 million worth of business in gold in the last year of the war and exported $65 million worth of cotton.

In the hemispheric struggle in which the Confederacy was engaged, English Enfields, Austrian and Brunswick rifles, Napoleon howitzers, heavy Whitworth siege guns, and an astronomical quantity of gunpowder were needed. These were purchased abroad by Confederate agents, paid for by cotton shipped on government account, and run through the blockade in the dark of the moon from the entrepôts of Bermuda, Nassau, and Havana.

Six hundred thousand stands of small arms alone reached the Confederacy via the blockade. 339,000 of them into the gulf ports.

All Came Through

Not only guns, but practically everything else the Confederacy needed came through the blockade. An insatiable war machine called for food, boots, cloth for uniforms, medicines, drugs, shoes, steel, copper and chemicals in an endless flow — to cite the inventory of just one blockade runner. Such items as silks, brandies, laces, perfumes, linens and wines also went through despite the Richmond government's ban on luxuries.

The Confederacy lived by its trade with Europe and Mexico, and if the blockade could have been enforced at any time, the rebellion would have been ended in short order.

When Lincoln proclaimed the blockade on April 19, 1861, the Union had no navy worthy of the name. There were only 42 vessels commissioned for active service, and of this number only 24 were steamers. Furthermore, the best part of the fleet was in foreign waters. In all the ports of the North there were only three steamers actually at the disposal of the Navy.

5 of 6 Successful

Thus handicapped at the start and having a 3,600-mile coast line to patrol, the Navy Department can hardly be blamed for not having established an efficient blockade in less than 3½ years. That it was able to build or charter 250 armed vessels by the end of 1862, and 600 by the end of the war, is a remarkable achievement, but one which fell far short of accomplishing its objective.

On April 7, 1862, the British consul at Charleston wrote: "The blockade runners are doing a great business. Everything is brought in, in abundance. Not a day passes without an arrival or a departure. Passengers come and go freely, and no one seems to think there is the slightest risk, as indeed there is not."

Blockade running had become big business and the majority of the contraband was carried in swift iron steamers designed and built in England especially for the purpose. Burning smokeless anthracite coal and painted the color of a Hatteras fog, the blockade runner on a dark night made the trip through the federal blockading cordon with no more hindrance than a passenger threading his way briskly through the crowds in a railway station.

Worse in Gulf

Until the efforts of the federal shipbuilding program began to show results, five out of six of the runners were getting through on the East Coast. In the vast expanses of the Gulf of Mexico, they were even harder to catch.

Not only were the federal ships outclassed in speed and maneuverability by the professional blockade runners, but the nature of the Atlantic seaboard was such that a fleet of several thousand armed, shallow draft vessels would have been needed to make even a pretense of patrolling it. The whole region seemingly had been designed by nature as a smuggler's paradise.

From the beginning, the navy adopted a policy of concentrating its ships around the major ports of Wilmington, Charleston and Savannah. But the approaches to these ports were heavily fortified and well-defended so that for a long time the blockaders had to keep their distance.

Could Afford Losses

Although the blockade failed to prevent material of war from reaching the Confederates, the government at Richmond had reason to be agitated by it — for both the French and British recognized the "legality" of the blockade. Their recognition did not prevent them from encouraging their nationals to run it, but the slap in the face caused Richmond to take action.

It tried to bludgeon Britain into a quick recognition of the South by withholding cotton from the world market. But the embargo proved to be a mistake, for the British had on hand a surplus of many hundreds of thousands of pounds. The chief fear of the cotton brokers of Liverpool was not that the blockade would be enforced, but that the South would win the war quickly, and dump four million pounds of raw cotton on the market, thereby causing the bottom to drop out.

The apprehensions on both sides of the Atlantic proved unfounded. The British found they could buy cotton by sending the ships to bring it home. Since a profit of a quarter of a million dollars each way was not uncommon, the owners could afford to lose a vessel after successful trips.

Drew Big Pay

Captains got 1,000 pounds a voyage which often consumed more than a chief officers, 250; second third officers, 150 each; a pilot, 750. Such was the demand for pilots that, if captured were never released. By drawing fabulous pay, or were able to indulge in private speculations of their own, stowing away a bag two of cotton for themselves a friend.

The rewards being as great they were, the traffic so attracted a host of adventurous souls willing to risk their lives for 1,000 per cent profit. By the southerners, most of the contraband crews were British. Scots among them, officers of the Royal Navy had resigned their commissions to seek a fortune overnight.

As to the rest, they were sprinkling of Danes, Spaniards, Portuguese, Mexicans, Greeks, Canadians, and not then, if the truth were told, New England Yankees or the South. Such were the men that the blockade, and they were appropriately enough, from the ports of the Spanish Main: Nassau, from Bermuda, Havana and British Honduras and Mexico and Brazil.

Motor Vehicle Dept. In Bad With Assembly

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — There no longer can be any doubt that a majority of the members of the state assembly bear a deep grievance against the motor vehicle department.

Not only can there be much doubt that the fact spells trouble for those who had hoped that this legislature might achieve some additions to the machinery for a highway safety program that had been erected by some of its recent predecessors. Depending on the attitude of the state senate, which is not yet known certainly, some of the sullen measures of the assembly may not become law. But it is painfully evident that some of the measures that the department hoped to have enacted cannot pass the barrier of the animosity of the lower house.

As it turned out, the widely publicized refusal of the assemblymen a month ago to permit state traffic patrolmen, in the course of their primary highway law enforcement duties, to arrest for felonies or misdemeanors observed on the road was symptomatic.

The other day the assembly in a solemn roll call resolved to return to the local police and constabulary the driver license examination function which the legislature had deliberately upon the advice of expert consultants, entrusted to the professional state examiner force only six years earlier.

BUT MORE

And just in case anyone sitting in the galleries had any doubt about its mood at the moment, the assembly also gave a preliminary vote to cutting back the new budget of the department, carefully enough composed in the first instance, which contained provision for improving some of the sensitive services such as driver license administration.

These were egregiously vengeful acts, on the face of them. What goes on here, the person interested in better road law enforcement and safer highways might ask?

Assemblyman Robert T. Huber of West Allis, a demonstrated friend of the department who tried his best to refute this spirit of attack upon the department, summarized when he remarked that the assembly's rejection was the result of "the lack of public relations" of the department.

He wasn't talking about press agents or speech makers at headquarters. There is an abundance of those. He was talking about the relations of the department's field men, including the examiners, with the general public. A representative of the department recently called to chat about the reasons for the assembly's displeasure. Your correspondent has in turn talked informally with some representative legislators.

Their complaint is that the state examiners are officious and frequently inconsiderate. The local police are more accommodating, they say.

THE POLITICAL RULE

This may be a totally inaccurate and unfair appraisal. Probably it is. To a vote-conscious legislator the gripes of half a dozen constituents frequently sound like the roar of the hostile multitude. But in politics what seems to be is often as important as what is. If any substantial number of legislators believe state civil servants are pushing their constituents around, it is going to go hard with the employing department.

Without intending any disparagement, or suggesting that these are not upright and faithful state employees (for your correspondent doesn't know) most state agencies could improve their constituent relations.

are one or two that could nominate here that need in-service training more ly, on the record, than does motor vehicle department. Many of them could take a lesson from a service that is equally serious and often pleasant law enforcement, the wardens' corps of the conservation department. George Hadland, chief of force, has drilled his men public relations, with r that are shown in an total absence of public or lative complaints.

Jackson Home From Washington

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for May 11, 1861.

Hon. A. B. Jackson, the newly appointed Register of the Land Office at Menasha, arrived home from Washington Wednesday last. He has been soldiering there for some weeks past in the Citizens' Corps under Cassius M. Clay, together with the rest of Wisconsin's boys in that threatened locality.

Soldier life appears to have agreed with him as he is looking remarkably well.

He represents that the Editor of The Motor, F. A. Ryan, also there, shouldered his musket and drilled with the same company.

Enlargement of the social service program for Appleton was one of the objectives behind the annual home service appeal of the Salvation Army, opening with a dinner at the army hall. A corps of 100 workers hoped to raise $5,000 so the program may be operated on a maximum scale.

Use Cabbage Seeds to Make This Unusual Initial Pin

BY CAPPY DICK

Some people—such as movie stars—have their names in electric lights. You can have yours printed in cabbage seeds and wear it on your lapel.

Jimmy Strong, our assistant editor for boys, found a package of cabbage seeds left over from spring planting. Noticing how round and black they were, he decided that instead of throwing them away, he would see what he could make of them.

With his pocketknife, he cut the bowl end of a wooden ice cream spoon and whittled it to the shape shown in Figure 1. He dipped the wide end of a toothpick into a bottle of clear shellac and drew the initials of a friend on the spoon. The initials were "H. E. O."

While the shellac was still wet, he set the spoon in a saucer and, taking the little cabbage seeds into his hand, sprinkled them on the spoon. The seeds that fell into the shellac stuck there. Jimmy rector moved the others by shaking them off. He discovered that it was easy to fill in any vacant places in the letters by pushing

Houseboats Grow More Popular; Lots of Living for Small Price

BY JOHN BOHANNAN
The boat owner who keeps his craft on an inland lake or river so far from his home that it's inconvenient to return to the house at night has a problem. Renting a cottage or staying in a motel for weekends and vacations can boost expenses.

For those who can't afford to graduate to a cruiser with family accommodations there's a delightful answer—the houseboat. Not a thing of beauty to be sure, yet the houseboat, even in a small size, utilizes its box-like lines to pack a whole of a lot of living in a low-cost package.

There's no attempt to compromise for trim lines or a seaworthy hull. The result is stand-up headroom everywhere and plenty of elbow room. She's so beamy and steady one can walk around without rocking the boat.

Pleasant to Sit
Most enjoyable loafing spot if it's covered is the forward deck. Farthest removed from the engine, it's a quiet, pleasant place to sit and enjoy a steady breeze from the boat's forward motion.

There's a sun deck atop the cabin for tan seekers, and the after deck offers isolation for the fisherman when trolling or at anchor.

Starting from forward and working aft, a typical houseboat layout consists of a combined pilot-house, dining and lounging area, followed by galley and head to starboard and port.

Aft this are the bunk rooms, with uppers and lowers on each side. Sure you can call them state-rooms in the fancier models.

All houseboats have one trait in common. Since they are displaced, hull speed is limited and relatively low power is required to drive them.

Fuel Consumption
For example, there's not much point in using more than about 15 h. p. on a small outboard houseboat, and a 30-foot inboard houseboat will do very well with a 60 h. p. 100-wildcat buoy claims.

10-Year Program Proposed to Acquire Migratory Wetlands

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 10-year "buy now, pay later" program to acquire wetlands for migratory ducks and geese was urged by witnesses before the House fish and wildlife subcommittee.

"Saving America's wetlands has become a national imperative," Reps. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., and John J. Dingell, D-Mich., told the committee in a joint statement.

"Unless these wetlands can be saved before they are drained, or priced out of the market, our treasured flights of migratory ducks and geese will be no more," they said.

Receipts of Stamps
Rep. Lester R. Johnson, D-Wis., noted that receipts of $3 duck stamp sold to hunters and sportsmen are earmarked for wetlands acquisition.

But, he added, waterfowl hunting has not been so good in recent years and fewer hunters have taken to the field. The result, he said, is that stamp sales have lagged.

The three congressmen are sponsors of bills that would authorize appropriations of $150 million over the next 10 years to acquire wetlands. The money would be repaid from receipts of duck stamp sales which, they said, would increase as a result of more adequate nesting grounds for the birds and, consequently, better hunting.

"This buy-now, pay-later plan will enable the nation to safeguard its valuable wetland resources during the critical decade of the 1970s," Johnson said.

Dingell and Reuss pointed out that in 1964, the Fish and Wildlife Service set a 7.5 million acre wetland goal. To date, fewer than 3.5 million acres have been acquired by the government.

State Works On Control Of Pine Bug

The state Conservation Department with the approval of the Conservation Commission is working out an order for a permanent control program against the jack-pine budworm, one of the worst of the infestations in the forest trees of upper Wisconsin.

The primary zone of infestation which will get most of the control work this year is in the jack-pine districts of Bayfield, Burnett, Douglas, Polk and Washburn counties in northwestern Wisconsin.

Chemical control work will probably begin in June. Hearings have been held to notify some of the larger land-owners in the district that they will be liable for a partial cost assessment.

Questions and Answers
Q. I have heard that silt in a fast-flowing river will cut into a houseboat hull. Is this true?

A. A friend of mine who owned a heavy 50-foot houseboat told me that the scouring action of the silt took a sixteenth of an inch off the bottom of his wooden hull every year. This would appear to be a good argument in favor of abrasion-resistant steel hulls where such conditions exist.

Q. How was a river steamer boarding plank rigged, and will this idea work on a houseboat?

A. A river type boarding plank is hinged from the forward main deck so that it can be lowered to rest on shore when needed. On a houseboat, the tackle for raising or lowering the board can be secured to the cabin top or from a short forward mast.

State Has Problem

How High Can Deer Jump, Michigan Asks

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—How high can deer jump?

Michigan state highway engineers would like to know so that they can plan protection for motorists zipping along the state's superhighway system.

Hundreds of deer are killed on Michigan highways each year and damage to cars runs into millions of dollars. The hazard is increased on the freeway system where cars roll along at 65 or 70 miles an hour.

Can't Contain Them
Four-foot fences topped with a strand of barbed wire border the interstate highway system, but they're not designed to contain deer.

State conservation experts figured the department would have to build fences 11 or 12 feet high to do that.

Fences of that height pose a considerable expense problem. The federal government, which foots the bill for 90 per cent of the interstate system, probably wouldn't share in the expense of deer control, the department said.

"Motorists must learn to expect the unexpected when they enter a deer crossing area," said highway commissioner John C. Mackie. "They also should know that when they see one deer there are usually three or four others close behind."

Test Vote Assured on Bill To Regulate Use of Boats

Want Motors Banned on Smallest Lakes, Restrictions Within Certain Distances From Shore

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — A test vote has been assured on a bill to give the state Conservation Commission the power to regulate the use of motor boats on Wisconsin lakes in the same manner that it now regulates the taking of fish and game.

The legislature has received the bill under the name of Gov. Gaylord Nelson, who has been pushing the idea of lake classification for boat regulation purposes since he took office more than two years ago.

New Concept
Obviously recognizing that the new concept of public regulation of private recreation may be received with misgivings by some elements of the public, the governor in a public statement assured boaters that such regulations would be undertaken cautiously, and with full protection to the public in the way of public hearings on the pattern long established for the regulation of hunting and fishing.

The governor said he wants two basic regulatory ideas to be considered by the legislature:

1. Banning all motors on the smallest lakes, with the definition of "small" remaining to be decided.

2. Restriction of the use of motors within a certain distance of the shorelines on all lakes in the state, except for the purpose of getting on and off the water.

Less Strict
"In each case, the regulations being considered are less strict than the local regulations now in force on many Wisconsin lakes," he explained. "But it is obviously advantageous to uniform and basic regulations that they apply statewide, in the interest of both enforcement and public understanding."

Two years ago the legislature directed, at the governor's suggestion, a preliminary survey of lake classification for the purpose of use regulation. That study has produced "enough solid information to permit us to begin thinking about sound regulation of water use to prevent the overcrowding and pollution that can destroy the pleasure of all using our state waters for recreation," he told the legislature in a message accompanying his bill to bestow such regulatory authority upon the conservation commission.

Upper Fox River
The measure was inspired by the desire of central Wisconsin communities along the upper Fox River for state-sponsored improvement of that stream for navigation, but it would apply to other waters of the state as well. The amendment must be approved by the 1963 legislature also, and then in a popular referendum, before it could be effective. Thus the first legislation under the change could be in 1963.

The national government is in the process of turning over to the state jurisdiction the navigation installations on the upper Fox River including the dams and locks on the ancient waterway. A condition of the transfer imposed by the state was the installation of some permanent facilities for the aid of navigation, including boat pull-overs that will replace the locks that will be abandoned. The pull-overs are expected to be completed this year.

Other Improvements
But boating interests are expected to push for other improvements in the stream in the future, including dredging at certain points. Such work under the present state constitution could not be performed by the state, as asserted most recently in an opinion of the attorney general's office requested by the legislature.

Sen. Walter Hollander of Fond du Lac and Green Lake Counties is the author of the Constitutional amendment.

David W. Reirson, 726 Congress Place, Neenah, landed this 7-foot, 46-pound sailfish while angling off Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. He was fishing from a boat captained by Harry Rihl, Ft. Lauderdale.

Sherwin-Williams Paint Company entertained 32 interested men last week at a meeting in the Michigan Room of the Conway Hotel. A new line of paint as well as painting equipment was introduced and shown.

W. T. Grant Company Stores began this week to distribute S. & H. Green Stamps to its customers. Thomas R. Loysen, manager of the W. T. Grant store at Valley Fair Shopping Center in Appleton is shown here with Jack Truman, field representative of the Sperry and Hutchinson company which distributes the stamps.

In his statement announcing this new policy, Mr. Loysen said, "We men and women who save Green Stamps, approximately 50 percent of all families in the nation. S & H is the only nation-wide stamp plan and the only stamp plan in effect in this country today."

"Distributed by the Sperry and Hutchinson company since 1896, these are the most valuable stamps our customers can save because each failed collector's book is worth $2.00 in cash redeemable in any Grant store or by any merchant who issues S & H stamps in this state."

William S. Beirbeck, president of the Sperry and Hutchinson company, said he was proud to welcome the W. T. Grant company stores to the roster of 80,000 business establishments using the S & H Green Stamp service. He noted that S & H operates 700 redemption centers to serve 27,000,000 men and women who save Green Stamps.

Many persons interested in paint and painting equipment were able to hear about it first-hand and ask questions when the Sherwin-Williams Paint company of Appleton entertained at the Conway Hotel.

The meeting was under the leadership of Chuck Shannon, local manager of the Sherwin-Williams Paint company. Shannon introduced a new professional coating line of paint.

Those attending the meeting included painting contractors, architects, school superintendents, maintenance men, hospital administrators, purchasing agents and Sherwin-Williams employees.

Special guest of the evening was Jim Hoopes of Milwaukee, who is the representative from Graco of Minnesota. He demonstrated the new airless spray paint equipment which his company manufactures.

The talks and demonstrations were augmented by movies.

This is to all women who dislike the time-consuming nuisance of sifting flour.

Because this flour is sifted through micro-fine silk before it leaves the mill, it is said to reach the consumer ready for use without any further sifting. Its millers claim that, in addition to saving time, it results in better, tastier baking that stays fresh longer.

Any recipe calling for flour can easily be changed to the no sift method by using one level tablespoon less Robin Hood Pre-sifted Flour per cup than the recipe calls for. Currently, each bag of Robin Hood Pre-sifted Flour contains a recipe insert featuring a variety of "no sift" recipes. A complete recipe book of "no-sift" recipes will soon be available.

Robin Hood advertising is appearing in the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Valley Fair Scene of Many Spring Activities

Valley Fair Shopping Center is abounding in special events this month. Already held has been the Third Good Neighbor Fair which took place Saturday, May 6, when 65 area organizations participated in a giant charity bazaar with proceeds for the benefit of the participating groups.

Starting Tuesday, May 16, exhibitors will be moving into the enclosed weather-protected mall to get ready for the fourth Home Garden and Food Show to be held at the Shopping Center Wednesday through Saturday.

Reservations for display space at the show are being handled by show chairman Tom Goodrich, manager of the Valley Fair Walgreen Store who reports that to organ music at all times, are Weydt's rides and amusements, new rides and concessions in the parking lot area. Ride discount tickets are available through the stores for the asking which entitle the bearer to a regular 25 cent ride for the price of only 10 cents.

A Fox Valley arts and crafts show and sale will be held at the center, the weekend of May 27.

The exhibit will feature paintings, sculpture, ceramics and crafts by both professional and amateur artists from Appleton, Neenah, Oshkosh, Kaukauna, De Pere, Green Bay, Fond du Lac, Two Rivers and Manitowish. The works will be displayed from noon to 9 p.m. Saturday May 27 and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, May 28.

Many Views Throughout World on Exactly What It Means to be Jew

BY LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

What does it mean to be a Jew? Jews have been debating that question for thousands of years and have never arrived at a simple answer.

Jewishness for some is primarily an ethnic identification: One becomes a Jew by being born into a Jewish family.

Others insist on a strictly religious definition: A Jew is one who adheres to the faith of Judaism.

Many combine the two viewpoints and hold that a Jew is a person who, by birth or conversion, identifies himself with a people who have had a unique history and whose traditions include the religious belief that they have been chosen by God for a special destiny.

Ancient Debate

The ancient debate has been revived and complicated in recent years by the establishment of a Jewish state in Israel. America's 5,500,000 Jews have given generous financial support to the new nation, but the vast majority have no inclination whatever to emigrate to Israel.

This attitude dismays Israeli prime minister David Ben-Gurion, who has said pointedly on several occasions that no orthodox Jew would willingly continue to live in the "diaspora" — that is, in dispersion or exile from the homeland.

Ben-Gurion contends that Jews who remain outside Israel are "in danger of gentle extinction" by gradual assimilation into a predominantly non-Jewish culture. He has also asserted that the religion of Judaism is inseparably "bound to the land of its birth" and cannot be practiced fully and meaningfully anywhere else.

Distinctive Identity

Ben-Gurion's definition of Jewishness has been sharply challenged by the famous British historian, Arnold Toynbee. In a series of articles and speeches during the past few months, Toynbee has deplored the idea of gathering all the world's Jews into "a single consolidated ghetto" in Israel. He has appealed to Jews to abandon "ethnic self-segregation" and to find their distinctive identity within "an open community based on a common religion."

Toynbee says this would have two results:

1. It would help to do away with anti-Semitism, which feeds on the notion that Jews are a separate "race."
2. It would transform Judaism into a dynamic, convert-winning religion of universal appeal.

It would be hard to say which has irritated American Jews more — Ben-Gurion's plea for all-out Zionist immigration, or Toynbee's call for total abandonment of ethnic self-consciousness.

The sharp criticism which has been directed at both men indicates that many American Jews are unwilling at this point to be pushed — especially by outsiders — into an either-or choice between extreme views of what it means to be Jewish.

Strong Trend

But Prof. Will Herberg of Princeton, a highly-respected authority who speaks from within the American Jewish community, believes that the trend is strongly in the direction of a religious definition.

Although ethnic considerations are still prominent in the minds of some older Jews who are immigrants or the children of immigrants, Dr. Herberg says, "American Jews of the third generation, practically without exception, understand their Jewishness as religious belonging."

"To be a Jew means to belong to the Jewish religion, just as to the Jewish people, just as to the Jewish culture."

Milwaukee's New Zoo To Open Officially

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The new Milwaukee Zoo, on the western edge of the county just off Blue Mound Road, formally opens to the public today.

The lion house and the pachyderm buildings will be open for the first time, along with the pri-mate house which has been seen by thousands of unofficial visitors during the past two years.

The formal opening will have another innovation. Visitors will pay 50 cents now to park their cars.

The POWER of FAITH

AP Newstheaters

Before Accepting the Job of Manager of the San Francisco Giants, Alvin Dark conferred with his wife and four children.

"I don't wish this to sound corny," he said later at his first press conference, "but I said to my wife that maybe this wasn't what God intended for us. . . . So, we prayed. All of us, for guidance. As the nights and mornings passed we became progressively more enthusiastic."

Dark is a devout Baptist. In a film for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, he said the Bible "contains all the rules of the game of life. It tells us what Christ expects of us. It's like the home plate in a ball game. . . . If we don't know where home plate is, we can't score. Likewise, if we don't know what it is Christ would have us do in life, we don't score there either."

Another Danger

But there is another danger which does concern the great Princeton philosopher. He fears that many American Jews may be embracing the religion of Judaism superficially, "without true personal involvement, without faith or commitment," simply because "religion is required as a vehicle of identification and belonging."

"We are confronted today with the strange paradox of more religiousness and less religion," says Dr. Herberg. "This is a danger that confronts Protestant and Catholic in America as well as Jew, but the Jew perhaps most of all, since the need for religion as an instrument of identification is felt most acutely by the Jews."

Ex-President Entertains Former Cabinet Officials at Farm Home of price supports man whose program the Democrats want to junk.

Like an old firehorse who has been missing the sound of the siren, Eisenhower jumped quickly to every political question fired at him.

Some of his answers: Former secretary of labor James P. Mitchell, the new Republican nominee for governor of New Jersey, got a hand when he arrived late at the meeting and the former President hopes "he gets a hard when he goes out to campaign."

Will Campaign

Eisenhower himself will campaign for Mitchell and other Republican candidates if they want him. But the question is whether "foreigners" from out of state should be brought into such contests.

His group of advisers will meet with him from time to time to keep abreast of political developments. They won't try to dictate to the party. Nor will they follow the practice of the Democratic Advisory Council, which issued policy pronouncements before Kennedy's nomination for the presidency.

Cheer from College

There was a cheer from 68 college boys and girls — some of them raincoated and bearing umbrellas and some shivering in bare feet—who had stood for over two hours to see the man who was giving their college more publicity than any football ever could.

With an apology for the pelting downpour which fractured the tradition that he always carries sunshine around with him, Eisenhower stepped briskly to the microphone to tell rain-soaked newsmen clustering about the steps that all was harmony within his administration's wing of the Republican party.

Reserves Right

He added pointedly, however, that the GOP is reserving the right to criticize at the appropriate time. But this was not the time, he said, for divisive voices to be heard in the land.

Then, a reporter gave him an opening he seemed to be looking for by asking the former President what he and his advisers thought about the farm program submitted to Congress by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman. Freeman has proposed that farmers draft their own programs, subject to congressional veto.

Benson Approves

Standing at the former President's left, Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture, beamed approval. Benson was a get rid of it man.

With a broad grin, Eisenhower snapped out: "Our discussions left no doubt about it. We don't like it."

Not Monument to Praise Founder Of Communism

BROOKSVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A county grand jury has exonerated the residents of Hernando County in the placing of a memorial to the founder of world communism on federal property near Brooksville.

The grand jury, after meeting for a week, reported that the plaque in memory of Nikolai Lenin "was not in our opinion the best judgment for this county, state or nation during these trying times."

The plaque was ordered by Margaret Robins. After her death in 1946 it was placed under a tree on a 2,000-acre tract owned by Col. Raymond Robins, her husband. He deeded the land to the U.S. Department of Agriculture prior to his death in 1954.

A Tampa scoutmaster discovered the plaque a year ago while on a hike with his troop. A newspaper story last month brought the plaque to public attention and federal officials ordered it removed.

Astronaut Gave First Space Weather Report

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. (AP)—Alan B. Shepard's remarks while on his sub-orbital flight were the basis of the world's first weather report from a man in space, the Air Force Air Weather Service disclosed.

Three minutes after Shepard was launched in a space capsule, last week he commented on the cloud cover over the Eastern Seaboard.

The second weather group at Langley, Va., AFB sent out a coded message based on Shepard's remarks from space as a pilot report even before he had landed.

Clorox Bleach Introduced Here in Plastic Bottles

New homemakers in this area can get Clorox. America's largest selling bleach. And, best news of all, Clorox half-gallons, gallons and new giant King Size come in plastic Safety Bottles that won't break.

The Clorox King Size bottle is an entirely new development in bleach packaging. It contains over a quart more bleach than a glass gallon, yet actually weighs less. This means you get an extra supply of bleach without extra bottles to tote and store. And, like the Clorox half-gallon and gallon, the new plastic King Size offers the added convenience of a "pitcher handle" which makes it wonderfully easy to lift, carry and pour.

The safety and handling ease of these plastic bottles are particularly important.

At this time, the new Clorox plastic bottles are available only in selected areas. Clorox is currently advertising in the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Mother Plays Many Roles -- Doctor, Lawyer, Carpenter, Gardener-- Leads Score of Lives

BY KATHY REARDON
Post-Crescent Society Editor

Tomorrow is Mother's Day.

What is a mother? A mother is a lot of things, agrees Mrs. Don C. Smith, mother of three young children ... Mark, 6, Scott, 8, and Jan, 10.

She and her husband, who is affiliated with Gaarder and Miller Professional Management, and youngsters live in an attractive bungalow at 1702 Ravinia Place.

The day begins early for her -- the children all go to Foster School which necessitates getting up and getting them off to their respective classrooms. Mark is in kindergarten, Scott in second grade and Jan in fourth.

Much to Do

The decision of whether or not to go back to bed after the children are gone is one that does not have to be made in the Smith household. There is always something to do around the house—cleaning, cooking and last week Mrs. Smith dug out the shrubbery in the front yard.

The Smiths moved here in 1956. Mrs. Smith is formerly from Montello. She attended Wisconsin State College, Oshkosh, where she met her husband who later transferred to the state university in Madison. After finishing her next semester, the young woman moved to Madison and became the wife of Don Smith in December of 1943.

"I did everything there," she recalled. "I was helping Don through school and worked at various jobs. We even owned a popcorn wagon on State Street," she reminisced. She also worked in the claims department of an insurance office and as a cashier in a drug store.

Active in Community

The young mother is active not only at home but also in many groups in Appleton. Her main area of interest seems to be with Appleton Jaycettes. She has been in the group since moving to Appleton and has served it in many capacities. This weekend she is attending the state Jaycee convention in Eau Claire where she is in charge of Jaycette merit awards.

She is also a troop chairman for the Girl Scouts at Foster School where daughter Jan will soon graduate from Brownies into Scouts, and a soloist in First Methodist Church choir. "Singing is my first hobby or like," the attractive woman related, mentioning also swimming and bowling.

"I used to be more active," she added, "but since the children have gotten older I find my time is not as plentiful. . . there is more to do around the house."

Seamstress Role

She makes many of her own clothes and also her daughters. Curtains, spreads and covers are also on the list. A mother has to be familiar with a number of careers — last week Mrs. Smith assumed the role of decorator and wallpapered the bathroom.

Yes, a mother is a lot of things and tomorrow is her holiday. The day celebrates its 47th official anniversary this year.

Mary Towles Sasseen was the true founder of Mother's Day. A school teacher in Henderson, Ky., Miss Sasseen planned and conducted the first celebration in 1857.

Anna M. Jarvis, Philadelphia, Pa., persuaded congress in 1914 to make Mother's Day a national holiday. However, both women are given credit for the institution of the sentimental holiday.

Described Day

Librarian emeritus, Susan Starling Towles, describing the first Mother's Day celebration in America, wrote:

"As I am now 91, I can, of course, remember very well the first keeping of Mother's Day in the Center Street public school in Henderson. . . My own mother attended this first meeting. She was attired in black.

wore a little bonnet with blue forget-me-nots under the brim and returned very happy over the celebration — as were the other attendant mothers."

The program consisted of songs, poems and recitations in honor of mother and home. Honored guests were the mothers of children attending the school.

Miss Sasseen died in 1906 after helping inaugurate similar ceremonies in other areas. The next year, 1907, Miss Jarvis arranged a Mother's Day service at the Methodist Church in Grafton, W. Va., and began her crusade for a national observance.

West Virginia made Mother's

Day an annual state holiday in 1912. Pennsylvania did the same the next year. A year later President Wilson signed a congressional resolution and secretary of State William Jennings Bryan proclaimed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day. And it has always been.

Mark and Scott Smith, 6 and 8-year-old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Smith, wait for mother to prepare an afternoon snack. The youngsters attend Foster School, near their home.

At right, Mother Joan leads her children in the singing of "Three Blind Mice," a favorite of theirs. Mrs. Smith believes in being a pal to her children, who, in turn consider their mother their best friend.

After the children have departed for school, Joan Smith has time to tidy up the house and get things in order before noon time and lunch time.

In the afternoon Mrs. Smith finds time to go over some of her work for Appleton Jaycettes. She has been with the group since moving to Appleton in 1956 and has devoted many hours to its projects.

ANOTHER FIREPLACE FROM ALLIED SALES CO.

Enjoying the warmth and beauty of the newly-installed fireplace in her basement rec. room is Mrs. Maynard Peters, 2407 N. Ullman, Appleton. This factory-built fireplace with brick front and brass frame and screen is one of the many custom-styled fireplaces available from Allied Sales Company located between Appleton and Menasha on Highway 47 at Midway Road. Installation time of the many varieties of fireplaces ranges from a few hours for the free-standing types to about two days for the more elaborate fireplaces. The trend today in new home construction, reports Allied Sales Co., is toward inclusion of a fireplace, and many homes built 5, 10, 15 or more years ago are modernizing by having a fireplace installed. No home has to be without the beauty and character of a fireplace, say Allied Sales Co., engineers, when it takes so little time and can be accomplished at such moderate cost. Fireplace accessories are also sold at Allied Sales Co., so if you have a problem, you'll find it answered promptly and intelligently at Allied Sales Co., fireplace specialists. Just dial REgent 3-3102 for more information — or better still, stop in and see the many styles and types of fireplaces available. Our Children Don't Forget Words Of Love for Mother

BY ANGELO PATRI In any book Mothers' Day is a year-round day as the cornucopia to serve for a lifetime but it does not do any harm if she is remembered with emphasis one day in the year. Mating that day might prod some forgetful people into awareness. Mothers are all too likely to be taken for granted. They are always there like the furniture and the three meals a day. Often it is not until the children have become parents themselves that they realize what mothers mean to their homes and their children. It is they who then are likely to remember Mothers' Day and look about for something to send her.

This is usually a box of candy. In an unusual gift of flowers. That's a fine but rather unimaginative. Few mothers of grown-up children want candy on such an occasion. and flowers don't last long. What they want is recognition as their children's beloved friend. True, awareness. Mothers are all too likely to be taken for granted. They are always there like the furniture and the three meals a day. Often it is not until the children have become parents themselves that they realize what mothers mean to their homes and their children. It is they who then are likely to remember Mothers' Day and look about for something to send her.

Family Diary Husband Makes Midnight Journey

By Jeannette Griffith

I have never before written in such as being notified on the job, my diary at 3:30 a.m. and I must etc. All this greatly amused John and he started off on another humorous tale but I signalled him to desist. Grady took Mitzi home early for he had promised a friend across town to do some work on a truck transmission. We watched them drive off. "Great kids," John said, "but I wouldn't care to be in Grady's spot. Making that hospital run four times is enough for me."

"I wonder if it's going to be a boy or a girl," I said. "Oh, I can hardly wait for that baby to arrive." As it turned out I scarcely had to wait at all for in a few hours Mitzi called in a panic. There was no mistake about it. The baby was scraped the door frame of the garage and then the car careened up to the street. I phoned Mitzi back. She still hadn't heard from Grady. "Don't worry about a thing," I told her. "Your Uncle John will see you through. He's an old pro." I kept my fingers crossed as I said it. Everything Fine

There was additional excitement when Grady returned home and found Mitzi gone. I routed him off to the hospital. A 2 John called. "Everything's coming along," he said. "Now that Grady's there," I pointed out, "you might as well come home and get a little rest." "No I'll stick it out with Grady." A few minutes ago he phoned again. "It's here," he fairly shouted into the phone. Mitzi's doing fine and Grady's with her. It's the cutest little thing you ever saw. I got a glimpse of it just a minute ago. His voice was unbearably sweet. "Stop saying it," I demanded. "and tell me. A boy or a girl?" There was a moment's pause. "Darned if I know," John said considerably subdued. "I'll go and find out." So that's why I'm sitting here

Your Problems Boy With Two Steadies Told to Take Back Jewelry and Honor

BY ANN LANDERS DEAR ANN LANDERS I'm a boy 17 who is going steady with two girls. One lives in town, the other one lives 60 miles from here. They don't know about each other. I'd rather go with the one who lives in town because I get to see her more often. My folks like the one who lives 60 miles away because they are friendly with her folks and they think it's better when families know each other. The girl in town has my class ring. The other one has my wrist watch. One asks where my class ring is and the other one wants to know how come I am not wearing my wrist watch. I'm running out of excuses. Please give me some advice on how to handle this. Both girls are very nice — D OF F

Dear Commuter: Now that you've told me where your ring is—and where your watch is—where is your sense of honor? You'd be far better off to play it straight and enjoy the company of several young girls. Collect your jewelry and don't make friendships so chummy from now on. Maybe you can still find your missing integrity.

DEAR ANN LANDERS I find it difficult to understand why you are so soft on wayward girls and unfaithful wives. Our son returned recently from a year's tour of duty abroad. He found his wife six months pregnant.

Grave Word Mothers crave word from their children as to how things are going. Is their business prospering? The job good? When are they coming to visit? What plans are afoot? And they would dearly love a word or two of appreciation of their services in bygone days, a word that shows that last they understand.

When looking for a gift other than the box of candy the flower, why not a book? Why not buy a book to accompany the candy? That's a combination many mothers would enjoy. They go together beautifully. A comfortable chair, a book, a box of candy at her elbow, a plant on the side table—what more could a mother want? (And the letter)

Do you look for the sort of book Mother would enjoy. Has she a garden? Send her a garden book. A subscription to a flower magazine. Does she love to cook? There are fascinating cookbooks on the market. Get her one that has interesting reading in it along with the recipes. Does she knit and crochet? There are books that deal with these handicrafts. Why not find one and send it with some thread yarn needles? Is she a church member who enjoys the Bible? There is a beautiful book for her. The Bible Companion meeting of Fox River Valley. want by heaven knows whom. Our shock was beyond description when she told us the news. We were shocked even more when our son came home and forgave her. By so doing, he rejected his entire family. We have moved 1700 miles away from them, thanks to my husband's understanding boss. Is it fair that we have lost our wonderful son to a girl who couldn't be a faithful wife? Stockbridge Setting for Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. John Stadler, route 1, Kaukauna, are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her sister, Mrs. Thomas Kennedy, Columbus, Ohio, was matron of honor. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Jayne Stadler, Kaukauna, was bridesmaid. Another sister of the bridegroom, Miss Ellen Stadler, was junior bridesmaid.

on the way and she couldn't find Grady. He and his friend had taken the truck to test on the highway. What should she do? Panics

I was practically in a panic myself, I said coolly. "Just be calm dear. I'll send Uncle John. He'll take care of everything." John was standing beside me when I hung up. "Send me where? Take care of what?" I explained rapidly. "If Libby wasn't spending the night with a friend and Sally didn't have a feverish cold I'd go with you but I simply can't leave." John stared at me wild eyed. "Go on," I said. "Hurry, Mitzi is waiting." He sprinted out the door and came back in two minutes. He didn't have the car keys. 24 State Parks Have 3,029 Sites Available for Season

MADISON (AP)—An estimated 1,000 campers are expected to visit Wisconsin's state forest and parks this weekend.

They will represent the first wave of the annual invasion that gets under way on the Memorial Day weekend and reaches its peak July 4.

There are 3,029 available campsites ready at 24 state parks and nine state forests, according to Conservation Department Forester Edgar Treckler.

New Campsites

Over 500 new campsites have been constructed by the state since last season, but many replace unsuitable temporary sites which have been closed. Net gain in camping sites over last year is 322, although other new sites may be ready later in the season.

Treckler warned that later this season campers may be turned away from the most popular parks because of overcrowding and in planning should consider alternate sites in order to avoid disappointment. A number of counties have developed attractive camp sites, conservation officials pointed out.

Treckler said the areas most likely to attract large crowds, especially on weekends, are Devils Lake State Park in Sauk County.

On the July 4 weekend last season, officials turned away hundreds of potential campers from Devils Lake State Park.

The previous July 4 more than 1,000 campers were turned away from the park.

Report Three Burglaries In Menasha

Two Schools, Park Concession Stand Entered

MENASHA — Police Chief Peter P. Clark today reported burglaries at Menasha High School, Butte des Moris Junior High School and the concession stand of Menasha ball park, all since Thursday night.

Most serious was the one at the junior high school, where the burglar broke a window to the boiler room, took a hammer and screwdriver and went outside to break another window for entry into the main part of the building. The boiler room was locked, preventing direct entry from there. The break-in was reported Friday morning.

The intruder walked past band instruments on the stage, apparently taking none, went to the second floor office and jimmied the door open. The door needs to be replaced.

Inside the office, he jimmied at the unlocked file cabinets to open them, although he only would have needed to push a release button. About $15 in cash was taken from the principal's desk. The entire office was ransacked.

At the high school, early today a front door window glass was broken to allow reaching in to release the lock. Apparently the offices were not entered.

Six bottles of soft drinks were the only items believed missing Friday night from the concession stand at the ball park. Entry was from a telephone booth adjoining the stand. A baseball bat smashed the plywood partition.

Convicted of Assault

Neenah Youth Jailed For Beer Bar Brawl

CHILTON—John R. Hall, 29, 496 Rainbow Beach, Neenah, was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $50 after being found guilty Friday by Justice Wilber Winch of disorderly conduct and assault.

Hall was arrested Monday by Undersheriff C. J. Kosmosky after a brawl in the parking lot of The King, a beer bar at the U. S. 10 and State 114 south of Appleton.

According to testimony, Hall and two 17-year-olds, one from Appleton and the other from Menasha, pulled Richard Bremmer, 386 Oak St., Menasha, and Gary Smarzynski, 17, 1912 N. Charlotte St., Appleton, from a car the intersection of U. S. 41 and 55 and were beating them when David late Friday afternoon, as the aftermath of an accident in Brown Menasha, attempted to stop the fight.

Gashed Scalp

The trio turned on them, the Weborg brothers testified. John Weborg claimed he was hit from behind with an unknown weapon and suffered a scalp gash which required five stitches to close. Both men said they were kicked after being knocked down. They were treated at Theda Clark Hospital, Neenah, Brown County.

After their attack on the Weborgs, the trio fled in a car driven by an Appleton juvenile not involved in the fight, according to testimony.

Dist. Atty. Franklin J. Schmieder said Winnebago County Juvenile Court has granted a waiver for the Menasha youth who will be brought into court next week.

The third youth, Paul P. Glaheen, 17, 1912 N. Charlotte St., Appleton, was picked up by Appleton police shortly after when he became involved in another fight. He was given six months in jail and fined $200 by Municipal Judge Oschmiedt. The Calumet at each other, the two drivers at County incident was taken into consideration before sentencing. The patrolman stopped the exchange.

Tempers Fray After Crash

Auto Driver Says Trucker Threatened Him With Hammer

GREEN BAY—Outagamie County Traffic Patrolman William Jansen, Little Chute, stopped what he said was a serious fight at the intersection of U. S. 41 and 55 late Friday afternoon, as the aftermath of an accident in Brown Menasha, attempted to stop the fight.

"We stopped and the truck driver came at me with a hammer, saying that he would shoot me," the driver of the car told Brown County police.

The collision was not serious, but the curious threat apparently resulted from tempers frayed by driving in a line of traffic on busy U. S. 41 in southwestern Brown County.

Tries to Pass

The auto of Jack Lebed, 39, a salesman from Chicago, was attempting to pass the semi-trailer truck driven by James E. Meicall, Fort Worth, Tex., when an auto approaching from the opposite direction caused Lebed to swerve back into his own lane suddenly. In doing so, the right rear of the car clipped the left front of the truck. The vehicles continued down the highway for some distance in police shortly after when he became involved in another fight. He was given six months in jail and fined $200 by Municipal Judge Oschmiedt. The Calumet at each other, the two drivers at County incident was taken into consideration before sentencing. The patrolman stopped the exchange.

Neenah Budget $2,000 Short Of Low Offers

NEENAH—The proposed Washington Park shelter house will cost about $7,100 more than original estimates, the park and recreation commission learned when construction and painting bids were opened.

The council March 1 approved $21,000 for the 38 by 32 foot shelter and had provided $25,000 for it in the current budget. Low bids total $25,339 to $28,146, depending on which alternate details the city selects.

Low construction bids with all alternates included ranged from the $18,657 by De Keyser and Rasmussen, Inc., Neenah, to $25,339. De Keyser and Rasmussen's base bid was $15,900.

Concrete Blocks

In the shelter house, if construction is approved by the common council, will be a 32 by 20 foot activity room, 9 by 12 foot supervisor's office, two storage rooms for park equipment, boiler and rest rooms. The base building bids call for concrete block without exterior facing.

Among alternates, De Keyser and Rasmussen figured $1,525 for brick exterior, $230 for a fireplace, $998 for tile wainscoting in the toilet rooms, $119 for screens, and $125 for glass work.

Plumbing and drainage work would cost $3,719, plus $50 for a hot water heater, if performed by low bidder H. J. Lenz and Sons Plumbing and Heating Co. Bids on that portion ranged up to $3,394.

Other Bids

Low bids on heating was $2,862 by R. Engler Co. High bid was $3,325.

Drucks Electric Co., Menasha, was lowest of seven bidders with the offer of $1,784 for electrical work. High was $2,378.

Low base bid on painting came from George F. Larson, Neenah, $1,074. High base bid was $1,360.

The project cost will be carried to $29,782 if all low bids are accepted, since the architects, Boettcher and Ginnow Inc., will receive fees of $1,686.

Police Note Fun Is Fun, but Sometimes Can be Dangerous
Sometimes people do simple checked all the roads in the area. They may do down-right dangerous things, like removing man-holes, like removing man-holes, like removing man-holes.

Appleton police got a call at 9:32 p.m. Friday from Joseph J. Wolf, 1003 W. Franklin St., say, rock put a dent in one of his in his front yard. Police found it in the 900 block of W. Franklin.

Some car might have been involved in a serious accident if it had hit the open manhole, not readily seen in the dark, police noted.

Fake Report
Neal Gamsky, a teacher at Roosevelt Junior High School reported at 9:37 p.m. that some boys had thrown a stick bomb in the gym during a student dance. He said the boys sped away in a 1961 car.

By the time police arrived everyone had abandoned the gym, and only Gamsky remained to talk to them.

Rabinovitz Spooks To County Democrats On First 100 Days
The first one hundred days of President Kennedy's administration were much like those of Franklin D. Roosevelt's, days of forcefulness and decision, State Democratic National Committee man David Rabinovitz said Thursday.

Economic problems were tougher in Roosevelt's time but many of the problems Roosevelt and Kennedy faced were similar and handled equally as well, Rabinovitz told the Outagamie County Democrats at the Driftwood Room of Standard Manufacturing Co.

Rabinovitz said the same elements are attempting to block liberal programs of both the President and Governor Nelson. These groups oppose all social legislation, aid to education, aid to hospitals and medical schools on a state and national level, he charged.

Not 'Softness'
Such programs, he said, are vital if the United States is to show the strength of its economic system and provide adequate economic welfare.

"To erect schools, and provide better pay for teachers is not 'softness' is not socialism and is not destroying the initiative or self-sufficiency of the people," he added.

A Democratic Party membership drive is in progress. The Eighth District will hold a dinner caucus at Manitowish June 1.

Four Terrors Post Victories In FRVC Meet

1-31.4. The record-breaking Redmen are Ned Mohr, Ron Grosh, Dave Meyer and Al Mueller. GBW's LeMere - Meetz - Lewellen-Turner unit held the former mark of 1:32.1.

Two Repeaters
Grosh, the only FRVC athlete besides Appleton's Weber to repeat as champion, tied the 220-yard dash record of 22.7 seconds. East's Bernard Baye set the standard for the event way back in 1932.

North's Bill Genszler, the 1961 meet's only double winner, gained a spot on the record roll with a 1:54.4 clocking in the new high hurdles (which have been raised 3 inches to a total of 39). Genszler also won the 180 lows in :20.4 as he threatened the Joel Blahnik (GBE) record of :20.0.

AHS' Bloedorn soared to a career record height of 5 feet, 11 inches as he won the award in his specialty. He gave the Terrors their first conference high jumping championship since Gene Rosenbom accomplished the feat in 1952 with an altitude of 5-10.

Bunn turned his conference-meet debut into a resounding success. He set a new AHS sophomore record by winning his section of the quarter-mile run in 52.5 seconds. His 10-yard victory wiped out the Austin Cotton sophomore mark of :32.55 set in 1953.

Best of Season
Weber retained his half-mile honors of 1960 with an authoritative performance. He broke fast from the barrier and set the pace all the way. The fast-traveling senior won his section by 10 yards over South's Carl Huber and recorded his best time of the season — 2:05.

Nordgren, an enormously-improved junior miler, not only turned in his peak career effort but turned the tables on his '60 nemesis, GBW's Jim Tyndall. Last year, Tyndall beat Nordgren down the stretch as he ran a 4:55.2 mile. Last night, Nordgren lowered the time to 4:41.3, and it was Tyndall who fell five yards short of catching the battling little terror at the wire. Nordgren, who took the lead halfway through the second lap, beat his own best previous time by five seconds.

In finishing second to South's record-breaking relayman, AHS' 880 unit not only collected eight points but posted the best Terror clocking in several years — a 1:32.1. Pete Kafura, Bunn, Wayne Polzin and Jim Hill carried the baton for AHS. Hill's torrid anchor-leg run enabled the Terrors to beat out GBW for second place.

Hill ran third in the 220-yard dash, being nipped by West's Schaefer by a scant half-yard.

Add Four Points

The Appleton sprint medley relay team (Dennis Gillespie, Wayne Polzin, Dave Schilling and Dick Rankin) added four points. Though the Terrors won their section of the event, their time placed them just fourth, overall.

Pat Keane and Dave Schlegelmilch earned a point apiece with fifth-place finishes.

AHS drew a blank in eight of the 17 events. The best example of the Terrors' feast-or-famine evening came in the field events. Though they won the high-jump title, they failed to score even a point in any of the other four field contests.

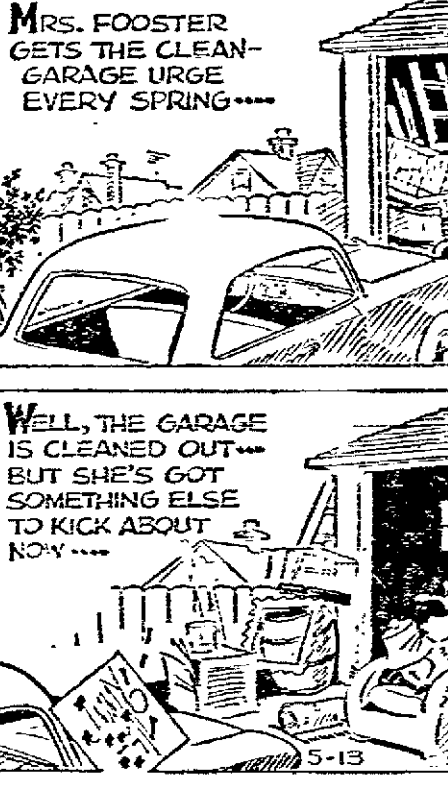

The most exciting finish came in the low hurdles race, as Genszler nipped South's Dennis Meyer with a final burst.

The most disappointed athlete was East's Lee Nihnam, who finished first in his section of the mile only to be disqualified. The judges ruled he had been "paced" during the last lap by a GBE representative. It turned out that the lad who ran on the infield side of the track, yelling encouragement to Nihnam, was a now-graduated member of last year's East team.

Loses Athletic Director's Post

'Moon' Mullins Wants to Remain Close to MU and Milwaukee Area

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Larry "Moon" Mullins, dismissed as Marquette University's athletic director, said Friday he hoped some way remains open for him to remain affiliated with the institution or "find an occupation that would keep me and my family in Milwaukee."

Mullins, visiting here, said his No. 1 objective was to remain in Milwaukee's metropolitan area. "My family is very happy there, my daughter is a sophomore took over until the decision more at Marquette, we enjoy good relations with the university and we have come to respect the community in our five years of residence," Mullins said.

Curtailed Program
Mullins said that the university informed him a few days prior to Jan. 31 that his services as athletic director would no longer be needed because of the curtailed athletic program resulting from Marquette's dropping football and track.

"They have adhered perfectly to their agreement, not contract, to give me 12 months to find some other job," Mullins said. "I don't know just what the faculty tenure facet of the agreement exactly means at present, but I would like to remain close to Marquette."

Ed Hickey, winning coach of the school's basketball team, will succeed Mullins as department head while continuing to coach basketball.

Started in 1956
Mullins joined Marquette in 1956 to attempt to restore the university as a national football power. He hired John Druze of Notre Dame as head coach and Marquette lost 26 of 29 games the next three seasons. Lisle Black-who's had such luck. Usually one operation puts an end to the trouble. But not always. Sometimes, because of location, or texture of the tissues, or whatever, the hernia repair breaks loose. Or sometimes the repair itself remains firm, but a new one develops right next to the incision.

Sincerely Sorry

I don't like to give the idea that subsequent trouble is to be expected. Usually there isn't any. But we have to face the facts and realize that sometimes conditions are such that there is a possibility of a second operation. I'm sincerely sorry that you've lost faith in your doctor who, as you tell me, has a good reputation. (And from some things I omitted from your letter, you and I realize that he warned you that your case was one of the tough ones.)

My advice, even if you don't like it, is this: Go back to that same doctor rather than to a different one, however good. Why? Because your doctor knows you, knows how difficult your particular case is, knows what extra techniques must be attempted. I'm afraid you'd just be deceiving yourself by hoping that somebody else would do better with a very difficult case. Surgeons are surgeons, not baseball pitchers! There's quite a difference.

Discuss Hemorrhoids

"Dear Dr. Molner: Suppose you could discuss hemorrhoids in your column? I would be very interested. — Mrs. W. E."

I could, and I have discussed them. Quite a few times. And I've finally assembled the material into a booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Dr. Molner, care of this newspaper.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My pulse rate varies around 110, 115, 120, never under 100. I am 35. Other than the fast beating, a heart murmur is all that has been found. My question: Can you have a heart murmur without any kind of trouble involving the heart? — S.N.L."

A persistently fast heart rate is the title of my booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is. Excessive coffee or tobacco can do something about it. For a be a cause also. Second question: Yes, it is possible to have a "functional murmur," a murmur long, self-addressed, stamped with no underlying heart disease, valve and 20 cents in coin to just as a house can have plumbing or heating pipes that gurgle.

Australia Sells 750,000 Tons of Wheat to China

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—The Australian Wheat Board has sold another 750,000 tons of wheat to Communist China, a board spokesman said. The latest deal follows sales of about one million tons earlier this year.

The board spokesman said Peiping would pay 10 per cent cash on the latest shipment, 40 per cent in six months and the remainder 50 per cent a year after the shipment. The wheat will be shipped between July 1 and Nov. 15.

Board chairman Sir John Teasdale said the board was carrying the entire responsibility for the deal and the Australian government was not implicated in any way.

Canada announced a $60 million grain deal with Peiping last month.

Droughts and floods have created widespread hunger in China and forced the communists to shop in the western markets for food.

or bang, without any leaks in the plumbing.

Hot Flashes

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it normal to have hot flashes after removal of the ovaries through surgery?"

"Surgery like this is not a hysterectomy, is it? That means the removal of everything, including the womb. Am I right? — Mrs. B.A."

No. 1: Yes, hot flashes can occur whether the inactivity of the ovaries is because of surgery, or from normal menopause. In either case, individuals vary. Medication may or may not be needed.

No. 2: You are right. Hysterectomy means removal of the uterus, or womb. But there are varying degrees, such as a "total hysterectomy," or a "sub-total hysterectomy," depending on how many of the associated organs are removed.

"You Can STOP Sinus Trouble!"

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to have a sinus trouble really is, and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a be a cause also. Second question: Yes, it is possible to have a "functional murmur," a murmur long, self-addressed, stamped with no underlying heart disease, valve and 20 cents in coin to just as a house can have plumbing or heating pipes that gurgle.

The Golden Years

Man Should Enjoy Rest After Retirement

BY THOMAS COLLINS

"My question is this: Does any man have the right to live in idleness during retirement regardless of his age or financial circumstances?"

"I have been retired for three years and have enjoyed it greatly. I have led such an easy, comfortable existence that my conscience is troubling me. When I sit down to eat I think of how many people have worked to produce and transport my food. I ask myself: Where is the equity?"

"Sure, I am old and have labored 60 long years to reach my present status, but I am still able to plant and raise food. Should I not do this as long as I can, in order to offset the unproductiveness of those, who through no fault of their own, are unable to work..."

(Honest, this is what the man says. He's a Texan and his name is H. T. McPherson.)

Worked at 10

"I have tried to argue to myself that, in the later years of my life, I am due the period of play and rest that I was denied at the beginning. I had to go to work before I was 10, long before the 40-hour week or the 70-hour week were even gleams in somebody's eyes. I put in 12 hours a day for six days a week and four hours on Sunday.

"Things got better as time went on but there was no cessation from the daily grind until I retired at the age of 69.

"My wife and I — and my greatest good fortune has been the 52 years of companionship I have enjoyed with her — own our home and have an income that is modest but comfortable. We have not listened to any siren calls of far-away places with strange-sounding names but have stayed here in this comfortable home where our roots are.

Take Trips

"When we feel adventurous we take trips, and the greatest pleasure we derive from those trips is returning to our old familiar nest.

"Our children live far enough away to live their own lives but close enough to reach us quickly in an emergency. Our grandchildren love to visit us and this old house has been a part of their memories and their affections from birth, and I am glad.

"What do you think? Should I accept this wonderful good fortune as my due, or should I reach out and try to pay for it with productive work of some kind?"

Well, for goodness sake! Unusual Testimonial

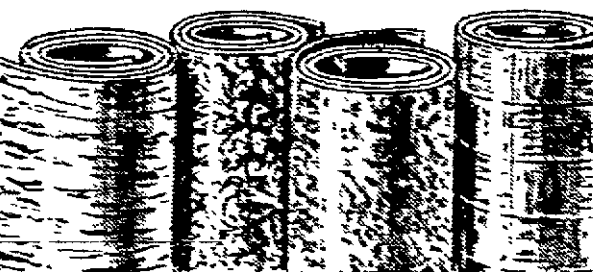

I didn't think there were any more of this kind still around. In the welfare age we now live in, this letter is an unusual testimonial to a good man, and I have printed it in detail for the inspiration it may be to those who build up bitterness in their hearts after they pass 65.

I could not tell this man he still owes anything to the world to which he has given so much. Nor would I advise a man with his feeling of obligation to his fellow man to sit down and forget it.

I would rather let the people who read this column supply the answer.
